

January 24, 2013

To Whom it may Concern

Re: Professional Reference for Taulman Construction Co.

I have had the pleasure of working with Taulman Construction Co. on many occasions over the last ten years. During this time period we have worked in collaboration with them continuously at the Yale School of Medicine, including complex laboratory projects in occupied buildings. Taulman repeatedly demonstrates their ability to deliver projects on time and under budget as promised. Their expertise in managing difficult projects and demanding clients makes them a valuable partner in the construction process. Adding to the complexity of some of our most successful collaborations have been delivering projects that meet LEED Gold standards as was the case with our highly celebrated Hunter 6th floor major renovation completed in 2010 for the Yale School of Medicine.

Taulman construction's entire staff works very well with their colleagues and their subcontractors as well. They work hard to stay on top of the project to ensure they minimize setbacks, delays, and additional costs. Having their expertise and counsel during pre-construction is always welcome. Taulman also actively offers solutions to streamline and maximize efficiency during the construction period. Overall, their service adds value to the construction process. In addition they are pleasant to work with while maintaining a strong leadership position. I have always been impressed with their project managers, project engineers as well as their superintendents who successfully manage multiple projects without missing a beat. It is also important to note that participation by the firm's ownership is a foregone conclusion thus assuring all projects receive the highest level of attention.

I truly look forward to teaming up with Taulman Construction Co. again in the future.

Sincerely,

David H. Barkin AIA
Principal

Attachments:

U:\Reference Letters\Taulman Reference 130124.docx